The Cover is the Best Part of this Book I found the author's voice ...By Dr. SueThe Cover is the Best Part of this Book I found the author's voice to be judgmental. She sounded like Goldilocks, this house was too nice, this house was too small, this house was too boring. Her frequent references to not having any money became tiresome,, but just went youthought she was going to figure it out, she was rescued by the mysterious Phil who owns a yacht and works in a mine. There are parts of the book that are helpful if you are interested in house sitting, but her overall writing style was disjointed and difficult to follow. As someone who loves and understands dogs and has done my share of dog sitting, her comments regarding her charges left me wondering why she even wanted to house sit for dogs. She jumped between calling herself an adventurer and then "just a grandmother". As a kayaking, biking, hiking, equestrian, yoga grandmother I found her comments about being a grandmother a bit insulting. It appears that other folks have given this book high marks, sorry I cannot be one of them. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Get out from under your mortgage and tour the world By S. Jackson Very interesting book about how you can get along with a penny in your pocket. I wonder if this can still be accomplished in 2015 as it sounds like a lot of fun to me. Housesitting so you never have to pay a mortgage and luckily have friends to stay with when there are no jobs going. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Housewarming in Australia. By Peggy1558 This book is so interesting and different from anything else I have read. She had many exquisite adventures. Fun read

In Housesitting in Australia, Nikki shares her transformation from an everyday working mother, to a house sitter, an explorer and a motorbike-riding tourist. In her engaging and often humorous writing style, she offers a peek into her new adventurous, carefree, and very low budget life as a travelling house sitter in Australia. Nikki provides an inside view on what it is like to look after other people's homes and pets, and along the way, offers advice for those considering house sitting. Learn how to get started as a house sitter, how to find housesitting roles, what people are looking for in a house sitter and how to apply for the best chance of success. Read about ways to support yourself while travelling, and how to live on a tiny budget. Whether you are thinking of house sitting or considering a life change of another sort, let Nikki's story inspire and motivate you. NEW - Especially for Australian Residents You can also order the book for $20 including postage, directly from the author at housesittinginaustralia@gmail.com

Nikki has written not only an inspiring book about how to transform your life, but also a practical and information rich guide to house sitting. This is a must read for anyone searching for a bit of adventure in their lives and who would like to try house sitting as a way to travel on a budget. Kylie - AussieHouseSitters.com.au From the Author When I started writing, I never envisaged my stories turning into a book. I just wanted to document all the wonderful adventures I was having. I kept notes and took photos and then one day I realised that I really did have a story to tell. This is not just a story about my travels and adventures, but also the story of how I got to where I am today. This is a story of hope and maybe just a little courage. When times were tough, I looked ahead and set goals and went with what was in my heart. It worked for me. It is also about housesitting. Many people have asked me how I got into housesitting. Others want to know if it could work for them. Maybe it could. Housesitting gave me a lifestyle that many people dream of, and I didn't need to be rich to get it. This year I have learned so much about myself and about what makes me happy. I learned about love, and life, and about making your own fun. This is my story and I hope it might inspire you so try something new for yourself. It might be housesitting, or it might be hang gliding. It could be writing your own story or maybe running a marathon. If my story helps at least one person begin a life of passion and adventure then I will be happy.
