Steven Primrose-Smith : Hungry for Miles: Cycling across Europe on One Pound a Day before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Hungry for Miles: Cycling across Europe on One Pound a Day:

After blowing all his cash on his previous long-distance bike ride (No Place Like Home, Thank God), Steven Primrose-

Smith wants to go cycling again. Without the necessary funds, he decides to see if it's possible to travel thousands of miles on a budget of just 1 a day. Against advice, he puts together a team of complete strangers, including a fresh-faced student, a Hungarian chef, and a man with the world's worst bike, the beard of a goblin and a fetish for goats. While cycling from Liverpool to Gibraltar through England, Wales, France, Spain and Portugal, they plan to supplement their cash-strapped diet by fishing and foraging. It's just a pity no one knows anything about either. People quit, nerves are strained, and faces and bikes are both smashed. Will anyone make it to Gibraltar?
