We just spent two weeks driving clockwise around Iceland, adding the West Fjords and East Fjords to the usual circuit on the Ring Road. Details of gas stations and museums/points of interest very appreciated and appear to be accurate. We did not feel the need to purchase any of the much more detailed map books carried by the N1 and Olis gas stations.This map is far superior to the National Geographic map. 1) It is more accurate, showing some of the new tunnels in the northern coast of Iceland, helping us make critical driving decisions. 2) The graphics on this map are much clearer and more readable. Choice of font and color for the text results in superior legibility. I had to keep getting the magnifying glass out to read the Natl Geo map while sitting at the dining room table. That isn't going to work when in the car!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. MUST HAVE---works great!By BM_Just had a 9 day trip to Iceland. The map works super fine We bought phone card just in case. The map shows many valuable information including the road types (paved, unpaved, gravel etc) which is very helpful when we made the safest route choices esp. in Westfjord. It also includes gas station so we always had no worry of running out of gas before the next gas station. Highly recommend.2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Good Iceland mapBy James J. HardyWe are taking a trip to Iceland in September and this map was a big help in doing the planning. It is well layed out, durable, and easy to read.

Iceland is not only a lovely country to visit, it is one of our most popular titles. This is a relatively minor updating, designed to keep our artwork fresh and up to date. We have retained the cover picture of the geyser that gave its name to all naturally occurring fountains of water that explode out of bedrock at regular intervals, as it so perfectly represents this beautiful country. As with previous versions, this map is printed on plastic for durability. The plastic is waterproof as well, which is not a big issue in Iceland, but the map can be used as an umbrella in the event of a sudden shower.
