William S Street : Iranian adventure: The First Street Expedition before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Iranian adventure: The First Street Expedition:

As stated, "Many couples approaching sixty and planning retirement might buy a camper and think about a little seroius fishing. Bill and Jan Street bought two Travelalls, hired a young mamalogist, and took off to scour the mountains, deserts, and river valleys of Iran for wildlife, specimens to enriich the collections of Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago. They started by hunting red sheep two miles high in the Elburza Mountains and went on from there. On two expeditions, they traveled nearly 15,000 miles".
