star for the location would help. If one is not familiar with the state, a map is necessary.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. The book was good as far as it went which wasn't much farther ...By Debra ThompsonHow about a road trip into eastern Kentucky to visit Breaks Interstate Park which is referred to as the Grand Canyon of the south? How about a road trip to Kingdom Come that overlooks Black Mountain, the highest point in Kentucky? No mention of Fort Harrod or Fort Boonesboro? The book was good as far as it went which wasn't much farther east than Lexington.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Has good 2-4 page overviews of various destinationsBy Maurice BendrixIdeal book for those interested in finding things to do while visiting Kentucky. Has good 2-4 page overviews of various destinations, with some side information that also proves helpful. Fun book for those traveling.

A drive straight across the Bluegrass State takes nearly eight hours. But that would bypass all the worthwhile distractions between Paw Paw in Pike County and the Kentucky Bend of the Mississippi River in Fulton County. Treasures like Abraham Lincoln's boyhood home that rests inside a Greek-style temple. Or the Jefferson Davis monument rising from a field in Fairview. From rip-roaring barn dances in Rabbit Hash to the silent reverence of the monks at the Abbey of Gethsemani, the Commonwealth is chock-full of timeless landmarks. Join native Kentuckians Cameron M. Ludwick and Blair Thomas Hess as they explore all the amazing and irreplaceable things that make the state one of a kind.

About the AuthorCameron Ludwick is a bookworm, trivia nerd and former band geek who still relies on the survival skills she learned at Girl Scout camp to cope with nature. She is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and lives in Central Kentucky. She spends time with Blair traveling the state for uncovering its best kept secrets. Blair Thomas Hess is an avid antique collector and chronic hobbyist who stores sweaters and shoes in her oven and once won a sack-the-pig contest at the Trigg County Country Ham Festival.
