AmandaSuch an amazing story! Their journey inspired me to get out and explore and talk to new people. An easy read and truly inspiring. Their quote really stuck with me: "A stranger is just a friend you haven't met yet."1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Do not read...By Philipp Spormann...if you are afraid of the annoying thought where you question yourself again and again why you have never done something like this ...0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Very uplifting to hear that small towns still embrace strangers. Remarkably they made the trip without major problems. Makes me proud to be an American

Quitting your job and leaving everything behind to cycle across the country without training sounds crazy, right? Not for a young couple who left New York with no more than four bags to bike across America while sleeping in churches, fire departments and bike shops. This book will teach you: How they followed the Transamerica Bicycle Trail and Why they decided to leave it. Why they had to spend one night in jail. Why cycling 3,500 miles over two mountain ranges, into prevailing winds, with 40 pounds of gear is not that difficult. How you can experience the beauty of the US by bicycle and What gear you need to survive along the way. Written in diary form, Next Stop Pacific Ocean will put you in the shoes of a couple discovering the states of Virginia, Kentucky, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, Arizona and California on their bikes.
