Ori Dvir : Off the Beaten Track in Israel before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Off the Beaten Track in Israel:

This book is part of a series called Nekudat Chan (Beauty Spot, or beautiful places in Hebrew), which is based on a popular weekly television program of the same name. Once a week, Israeli television broadcasts a short program describing a site or a landscape. Over the years, many films have been made, and thus audiences have come to know numerous sites through their television screen. Now we have a series of books containing color photographs, maps, and clear instructions for reaching the described locations. Most of the sites are away from the main routes. Some can be reached by car, others require a short walk. These include archaeological and historical sites as well as scenic areas.

From Library JournalThis attractive, reasonably priced travel book presents an Israel with which few tourists are acquainted. Derived from the author's popular Israeli TV show, the book describes 88 unusual nekudat chem (beauty spots), each with a full-page color picture, map, and witty description of the geography and history of the area. A great many archaeological sites are included, ranging from the ancient copper mines and Egyptian temple of the Timna Valley to the Crusader castles of Belvoir and Montfort. Natural wonders like Har Sedom, a mountain of salt near the Dead Sea, and the Galilee's Tal Forest are also treated. This book will delight armchair travelers as well as visitors to Israel. Andrea Caron Kempf, Johnson Cty. Community Coll. Lib., Overland Park, Kan. Copyright 1986
