Not only did I love it, but I read it to my daughter and 13 year old grandson who clapped, laughed and slapped his leg many times throughout the book. Next I read it to my husband while traveling. He also laughed and would slap the steering wheel. So it is not just my opinion but is great for all ages, men or women. In the humor we learn though the cultural difference we are so much the same.1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Get your plane ticket from normal!By TravelingiraffeI loved this book, from the start with the offering for such a bizarre food choice, a goat eyeball. Really? I've been to Egypt, thankfully no one offered me one, I'm not sure I would have handled it so well. But I'm not telling if she ate it or not.I love her culture cue's at the end of each chapter. Some seem so simple, but are also the kinds of things we forget because they are so simple.1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. A Heart-Grabber with a Lot of Laughs. Wonderful Book.By Rhonda BollingI loved this book! Full of courage, raw emotion, adventure and laughs. Wow. This author is so funny and a great storyteller. She drops humor nuggets all throughout when you are least expecting them and just makes you bust out laughing -- which is a great gift when she has you on the edge of your seat wondering what will happen. The author's sense of humor and the stories she tells grab your heart and you will feel like lifelong friends of her and her family after reading about their journey to Egypt. Highly recommend this book.

You want me to pack up, leave everything I know, and go where? Sometimes God asks us to leave the familiar and venture out into the vast unknown, but are we willing? For Pam, the line had been drawn in the sand, quite literally. Through humorous and hope-filled anecdotes, Pam recounts her journey from a normal, laundry-driven wife and mother living in her understood Missouri hometown to an unknown, sand-infused teacher trainer living along the Nile among an often-feared, mysterious people. In "One Plane Ticket From Normal" you'll discover: Snapshots of daily life for those who want to know what it's like to live in a foreign land. Stories of friends made along the way that reveal Middle Eastern thought and lifestyle. Helpful tips for integrating into new cultures, interacting with other-culture persons, and creating safe environments for deep-life conversations. Discussion questions for small group studies
