I HIGHLY RECOMMEND THIS BOOK FOR A RELAXING, YET ENLIGHTNING PIECE

OF REALITY.

The book reflects on the memories of an old man and his travels.

A gentler time nostalgic dj vu promise of yet to be. Whispers of days past what might have been. -- Evelyn Helmick, Uniontown, PA Exceptional poetry collection. Experience with senses and soul. Stirs the emotions and spirit while conveying thought provoking and philosophical truths -- Rachel Durand, North Smithfield, RI Society has been given a great gift by the unleashing of Mr. Balints writings. -- Mrs. Denise Sevigny, West Greenwich, RI With the world chaotic, it's refreshing to enjoy words that relate to our inner feelings with compassion and truth. -- Constance LeBlanc, Woonsocket, RI From the Author Having lived the life of a traveler, walking across three continents, I have witnessed Man's greatest creations and also his abominable treatment of his fellow man. Thus it came to be that I decided it was time to place these experiences on paper for others to read and give judgment. About the Author As a professional engineer, I functioned across the breadth of the U.S., Africa and Europe. Far from my birthplace of Ronco, Pennsylvania I discovered a tremendous thirst for literature and especially poetry. Poetry became my elixir, my crutch upon to lean during times of stress and in its healing words, I found peace. I have called "home" Ronco, Colorado Springs, Cape Canaveral, Chicago, Casablanca, Rabat, Oued Zem, Tangiers, Eindhoven and now, Wilton NH. During my travels I have lived through Civil War, Insurrections and was present at the birth of a nation. I have walked with Scientific Colleagues, Foreign Legionaries, Berber Tribesmen, Thieves and Heroes. During the trek I also was an unwilling guest of Berber Tribesmen in the Rif Mountains of what was then, Spanish Morocco. Finally I located New England and especially New Hampshire to plant my feet for the final run. It is here, after forty-three years of dealing with industry, that I decided to direct my energy to writing. The history of the area and the unique people is a canvas upon which I plan to paint my final thoughts with words.
