An authentic journey from the comfort of your armchair.By Kehlen MikkelsonHave you ever wondered what it is really like to go trekking around the world? Imagine casting aside the comfort of your living room, the welcoming familiarity of your TV, the easy indulgence of your microwave popcorn in favor of new once in a lifetime experiences and sights from places you've never even examined on Google world maps. Well for those of us with such idle dreams that get pushed aside in a bid to pay the rent and a fear we'd miss our oh so comfortable bed just a little too much, Marsha Delaney gives us front row seats as she endures all the leg-work for us. It's just the trip I'd imagine I'd have. A thoroughly enjoyable read.

At the age of 28, I was coerced into taking an around-the-world adventure with my boyfriend. He wanted to see the world. I did not. I preferred sitting on the couch, getting stoned and watching TV. In The Reluctant Traveler: From Peru to India, I humorously recount what backpacking through nine countries in five months was like for someone who never wanted to leave home. From Peru to India, the experiences I encountered opened my eyes to the world and changed the way I think about life beyond our borders.
