Every so often people encounter incredible situations that only the most courageous individuals can triumph over. The books in this series celebrate the human spirit and provide the true stories of people who faced impossible conditions and survived.

From School Library JournalGrade 5-8-In 1914, Ernest Shackleton determinedly set out to be the first to cross Antarctica on foot. Although the ice prevented his group from ever reaching their goal, they survived for two years in the world's most severe climate. They lived onboard ship, on ice floes, on an uninhabited island, and in a lifeboat sailing to find help. Fine has captured the excitement and adventure of this event exceptionally well. While keeping the reading level low and the sentences short, she relates the story in a way that will hold reluctant readers' attention right to the end. A well-designed hi/lo book, enhanced by maps or black-and-white photos on every other page.Elizabeth Stumpf, Clearfield Middle School, PA Copyright 2002 Reed Business Information, Inc.About the AuthorJil Fine is the author of several nonfiction books for children.
