Nina Willdorf, The Readers Of Budget Travel : The Smart Family's Passport before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Smart Family's Passport:

2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. a quick read, useful tipsBy L Oa quick, useful, funny read. i'm a seasoned traveler but new to kids. i picked up quite a few useful tips (like buying a disposable platic table cloth (for $1 or $2), cutting it up into large rectangles and placing over public changing tables so my changing pad doesn't even touch the changing table).0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. good referenceBy MargaretI borrowed this from my local library and then decided that it would make a nice gift for the travelers in my family, so I bought a copy. As a seasoned traveler, I had already developed my own list of tips (including a packing list on my computer, updated for each trip). However, I learned a few other things, especially about traveling with kids in the car.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Great tips and fun ideasBy SapphireI love travel tip books, and though I don't yet travel with kids I found the reader-submitted ideas in this one interesting -- some are even applicable to adults-only travel. There are suggestions for situations as varied as finding unique souvenirs, helping toddlers through airport security, letting kids and teens participate in planning the trip itself, etc. Well worth a look!
